For These who know us best know how humble and lowly we feel, even when having the only paper collar in the crowd which has not been turned and sandpapered.

We shall occasionally put on a white shirt -not to humiliate our fellow citizens or boost ourselves above the herd, but in order to connect us temperarily with outside civilization. Now and then we shall replace the borse hide strap around our waist with the suspenders spoken of, but it will not be in any spirit of self aggrandizement, such as might justly call for mob violence and the destruc-tion of our office. As for the old grave robber opposite, we have already located him for an Ohio sheriff, who is expected along daily to take him away. DO NOT PORGET.

We trust that none of our friends will forget the fact that we still continue to board ourself and cook our meals on the office stove. Contributions of vegetables, game, bread, eggs, and whatever is catable, are always thankfully received and followed by a free puff for the contributors. - Detroit Free
